Editorial Comment.

Since it is accepted as a fact that rate are one of the principal factors in the dissemination of playue gorms, the Sanitary Board has taken a wire stop in proposing wholesale bushaught upon the wily rodont, and, as Air Osborne sensibly remarked at the last meeting of the Board, now is the time to begin the crusade and not when the plague is upon us in all its ghastly hideousness. We understand that the head of the Government is a warm supporter of the Beard's proposal, so perhaps it will not be necessary to ask permission from the Colonial Office to adopt a measure which, it is believed, will help to initigate the yearly visitation of plague. Whatever method is ultimately accepted as the best to keep down the rat population, it is obvious that there are many places maccossible to the professional rat-catcher, such as private dwellings, &c., and so a gentleman, who, on account of his experience, has some right to be heard on this subject, sonds us the following remarks as worthy of public consideration at this time :-As an amateur int-catcher, for, whon a schoolboy, I made much pocket-money at my own home by ridding the place of rate, I may be able to offer a few hints to those who have lived in localities unfavourable to rats. There is a curious connection between rate and water, and most places situated on a river are infested by them. Sewers take the place of rivers in large towns. Now, the rat is a very clever little animal, and sood knows a trap and the smell of a trap. and I am afraid the hundreds of traps made to one gain was book of or inthe use, for rate. seem to pass the word along and nutling will induce them to outer. As an all-round trap, the iron gin is parhaps the best, for on can disguise it so well. It can be set in grain, mnd, chaff, and sawdust; and, if scalded or put in hot ashes now and then, nover fails, it shifted to a new locality occasionally. Of course, it has objectionable features, for family pets, cuts and dogs, are liable to be caught if it is not protected, and, if rate are left in it too long they will cat off the broken part of the leg and escape. I remember once catching a rat by his only remaining leg, the others having been eaten off and the stumps healed up. In the London Docks, the rat catchers use large cage traps, which are baited with green stuff, cabbago, &c., and the rate have the free run of them for a few nights Then the traps are set, and a big hail is the result. It is curious that these rate are run into a bag, and when hung up would rather starve (han gat their w.) out. Pits dug in the ground, the top par rower than the bottom-ministure oubliefter -form another excellent way of impoints rodents, and are in great layour in gardens and plantations; but for an ordinary house I would say nothing beats tirdlime spread on a board. I believe it strikes terror into the rate, and those that are not caught some leave. Oil of an seed is perhaps the best thing to attract them; also raw mest and vogetables. There is a very good trap made by the Malays out of a bamboo. is innocent in appearance, and suggests a rat hole. Then a eask may be converted into a trau with a board nicely balanced on its edge, the bait hing on the inner end so that when the rat runs ou on the board be in shot into cask like walking the planks hole made in the bottom of a case, and the out half filled with straw and a little grain, we often needt in a good had A picce of wood should be tied to the end of a wire, reccurred in a piece goods, exablishment in across when any rate inside are carried being completely guttel. Dog Licences.

The annual issue of dog licencer will commence next month, and our attention has been directed to a matter which is worthy of consideration by the Captain Superintendent of Police. Several dogcwners suggest that instead of issuing new metal tabs, with the number of the licence_ to be attached to the tiogs collars, that the tabs issued this year, which are attached to the collars, be retained, and the same numther be entered in the licence. If this method wore adopted; it would save the mutilation of the collars, by the extractions of the one tab and the substitution of the new one. The owner would have him iconce-payer to show when the licence had

Pirates Steal a Hongkong Launch.

There is good reason to suppose that gang of pirates has stolen the stoam launc Fei On which has been reported to th Police as missing. The launch was running hetween Hoogkong and Lantau Island, G. Engel .... calling at the two villages of Tung Cheung and Tui O, and a few days ago was chartered from the owner, by a man unknown to him, to continue on the run. On Monday afternoon, the launch left, as usual, for Lantsu, and called in at Tong Choung where one pussenger was landed. Yesterday, this man walked over be Tai O, and was met by anxious enquiries from the villagers as to the launch, which had not called in at Tai O. Enquiries were made and was discovered that the launch had not returned to Hongkung. The owner knows nothing concerning her whereabouts, and says the charterer was a stranger to him. It would appear that the robbers have been altogether too clever for the launch owner, and liave secured a vessel which may serve a useful purpose in their deprodations. - Some years ago some memhera of the piratical fraternity were successful in securing two launches from Honzkong and having covered up the names of the vessels with canvar, they went steam. ing up the West Kiver, flying a Manderiu's flag, and leried blackmail on a large numbor of passenger boats. As a precautionary moneura against the recurrence of similar tactics. the Captain Superintendant of Police has communicated the intelligence of the rubbery to the Usuton Viceroy, and it is hoped that that official will take active steps to secure the capture of the bunch and the robburs H.M.S. THE WAR, THE DEFEAT AT

THE CAPE General Gatacro had apparently a force of 4,000, and lost one gun. The column; which was marching four abroast, was surprised at daybreak by a hot Borr fire. There was no confusion, and General Galacre and the officers coully brought the men into action, and a hot battle was soon raging. The British Artillery occupied position on a small kopie, and the infantry gallantly claimbered up the enemy a position in exirmishing order under a galling fire. On reaching the top they found themselves the centre of the enemy's fice from three quarters. The casualties were: Irish Rifles-Colonel Eagar, Major Seton, Captains Bell H s Excellency the Governor, with Lady and Kelly, and Lieutenants Stevens, Stone twelve men wounded and 200 missing ed. 77th Battery-Major Percival wound ed. Litter,-Lord Methaon reports that he advanced at daybresk yesterday, and en countered 2,500 Buers with six guns an two-machine guns. The fight lasted from six to ten. After altrappelling, and ap parently clearing, the Boer position, the Naval Brigade and the Infantry assaulted and stormed the heights. The fighting was must desperate. The Boors retrested on to the line where the Oh Lancers were placed to intercept them; but the result of this is not yet known. The Naval Brigade displayed the greatest gallantry, and suffer heavily. The Marines, Yorkshiros, and North Laucashires especially distinguished themselves. The force must take half day at Graspan to rest the men and relepish their ammunition. The troops are prepared to overcome any difficulty.

Later .- 20 Boors were buried after the fight | and 31 are known to be killed and 48 wounded. 81 Boors were killed in Thursday's fight. Lord Mothuen has established holiogra-communication with Kimborley. Owing to the incidents that occurred at Rolmont, Lord Methuen has written courteously to the Boer Commander asking him to prevent the Boer wounded firing on the British who are desirous of assisting them, and to desist from the use of Dum-Dum bullets, and to forbear from the abuse of the white flag. The killed at Grasp'n include Oummander Ethelston, of H.M.S. Powerful; Major Plumbe, of the Royal Marines; and Captain Senior, of the Royal Marine Artilery. Severely wounded-Capt. Protheroe of the Doris; and wounded-Lieut. Jones, thear Sir. - I am a poor hand at expressing in leelings, but I should like to thank you. Your lozenges have done wonders in relieving my terrible cough. Since I had the operation of "Trachectomy" (the same as the late Emperor of Oermany, and unlike him, thank God, Liam still alive) performed at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, no one could possibly have had a more violent cough; it was so bad at tings that it quite exhausted me. The mucous, which was very copious, and hard, has been softened, and I have been able to get rid of it without difficulty; - I ma, sir, yours

Doctor Nelio is certainly one of our greatest and one of the most enlightened surgical practitioners. Statistics made of all operations performed by him show us that during thirty-five years of practice ou of 100 patients operated upon only 2.8 suc-2190 cumbed during the actual operation. The remaining 97.2 are divided as follows :- 6.7 still survived and 90,5 were unable to surrive owing to their inability to support unforeseen complications.

Dr Nelio has devoted a great part of his time to the study of antisoptics. It was he who proposed to an ungrateful Government to replace metallic coins by discs of compressed charcoal, containing 5 per cent of salol, thereby avoiding the dissemination of microbes among his poor fellow creatures. He is at present perfecting a scheme which has for its aim to enforce the use of asoptic utensils in all households in order to nullify the effects, heretofore so distressing, of the indiscreet habit that flies possess of infecting all surfaces which come into contact with the bacterine extremities.

Recently, on going has daily round of the hospital, a poor sailor was presented on a stretcher-an old grey-headed man who had been found unconscious in one of the streets hard by the port. Eyewitnesses insisted upon the fact that the man was overcome by liquer. Not so our illustrious professor. After a minute examination of the tumifactions on the patient's face, he finished by discovering on the right check a very coracterised and unmistakable swelling. Baving sent for his surgical instruments—to the great joy of his medical students who revelled in the marvellous capabilities of their chief-the Professor made a large crucial incision, introduced his thumb and first finger (after proper asoptic precautions) into the wound, and after a short exploration drew forth a quid of tobacco which was firmly embedded between the cheek and the gums of the patient !

This extraordinary operation has excited niuch criticism and admiration in the modical world, and as a result a pamphlet will shortly be published, entitled. A New Method of extracting Quids of Tobacco from Sailors' Mouths without opening the Patients Lips or Maxillaries. - Translated from the French of Tristan Bernard.

METEOROLOGICAL MADNESS. OLEMENT WRAGOR AT IT AGAIN.

We take the following fearful example (with communts) from The Australasian Mr Clement Wraggo bas a craving to be talked about and he shapes his weather bulletine so that they shall attract notice. They do attract notice of a kind. The meteorological observers at Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, &c., do their work in quiet, scientific manner. It is enough for them if the bulletins they issue are understood by the people who are interested in knowing what to-day's and to morrow's d weather will be. But Mr Wregge, of Brisbane, seems to hold with Jaques that all the world's a stage, and that some mon least inconvenience causes great suffering of ought to play the fool's part, to amose the crowd. From time to time we have given extracts from his observations, but the 27 sheet issued last week claims special attention. An atmospheric depression was passing. Mr Wragge, so that people should talk, gave it a name, as is his wont- Borrigan, he termed it-and he then proceed ed to indicate how its approach would be noticed in Port Jackson A gallant ship near ready for sea, bound to old England round the famous Horn. She's been well tarred and overhauled while lying at the Circular Quay, and now the 'old man' sits in his cabin studying the accounts rendered in triplicate as he mons his face under the burning northerlies in advance of the disturbance. The steward goes through his stores for the passage home. 'Get me a cool whisky and soda, says the captain, pulling under Borrigan, and look here steward, you'll have to cut it very fine there'll be a lot of claims for short delivery too many of 'em.'" The scientific value of writing of this kind is hard to perceive but Mir Clement Wragge's only object may be to advertise counts rendered in triplicate is good; an' order for whisky and sada is not so remarkable; the claims item is a little obscure. As the day wears on the dramatic situation

"Sore heads to-morrow, mumbles the skipper as he clears the gangway; 'wonder if that wandering sky-pilot 'll come aboard is the mornin' with his guff topsail cost and trade wind hat. Ay, adds he to himself, these shorefolk thinks as Jack wants a lot of saving more than them larriking about the streets."

That is Mr Wragge's way of lugging in a reference to the clergy. The scene changes to the shore; next day-Olsen, Sam Lewis, and another are at the nearest livery stable. "Hope the bally moke 'll answer his belm," says Lewis, as the wind on the northern half of "Berrigan" increases in velocity, "it'll take two of us at the wheel. Give us that low-legged and long-backed beggar," adds he to the stable. man; "there's three of us agoin to got Then we are taken back to the ship on sail-"Get all hands aft here, Mr Cross," roars the skipper, and away they come tumbling over each other, with "main stopmast gone at the crosstrees," as the result of the last visit to the "First and Last." One lingers to kiss his best girl. "What the bally thunder's the matter with you? says one sailor to a beery mate: "come aft and work here if you're goin' to work, can't you?" adds the more sober of the two. The "old man" is not communicative-he looks anxious and worried as he scans our forecast in the daily paper, and has still a soft corner for memories of his lady friends. "Stand by that after line; take in the slack," sings out the pilot. "Wragge's right, after all," thinks he; we'll get it pretty stiff afore we gets

Science, you perceive, feels it its duty to take judicial notice of tipsiness among sailors. That little advertisement for Wragge is neatly worked in. In the 'observations there is a good deal more to the same effect, which the reader no doubt will Mr J. H. Aitken take our word for. That any Government | Mrs Augus moteorologist should issue such rubbish is Mr W. S. Bailey passing strange; that the Queensland Gov- Mr. B. J. Barlow ornment should pay for printing, typewrit- Mr W. M. Black ing, or copying it is astonishing.
